Testing - What to Expect

ARTERIAL SEGMENTAL PRESSURES INSTRUCTIONS

An arterial segmental pressures test is a test for the circulation in your arms or legs. A series of blood pressure cuffs are attached to your arms and legs and measurements are taken of the pressures using sensitive, Dopplermicrophones. To make your test as pleasant an experience as possible, please help us by following these guidelines: Wear a 2-piece outfit (shirt and pants or skirt). Please, ladies, do not wear panty hose for this test. Wear comfortable close-toe shoes such as tennis shoes. We may have you walk on a treadmill if we are testing your legs.
